The annual Glow-Worm Gala is the most magical night of the year in the sleepy village of Ripple Bay, as hundreds of glow-worms light up the night. But this year, Gloria the glow-worm has lost her glow! Afraid she'll miss out on the festivities, her friends Tucker the tree frog, Elsa the , and Bruce the flying fox decide to help her find it. Their search takes them into humorous situations around the village—getting tangled in fishing nets, rolling down sand dunes, and taking a midnight dive in a rock pool. In the end, they discover that true glow comes from friendship and bravery, making this year's gala the brightest ever.

Gloria the glow-worm was gloomy that night,
"I've lost my glow—I'm missing my light!"
Tucker the tree frog gave a big cheer,
"We'll find it, Gloria, don't you fear!"

Elsa the echidna rolled up with a grin,
"Let's start the search—I'll dive right in!"
Bruce the flying fox flapped down from the sky,
"Follow me, friends, let's give it a try!"

They waded through puddles, they bounced and they flew,
Elsa got tangled in seaweed, too!
But as they all giggled, what did they see?
Gloria's glow was back—bright as can be!

So if you feel dim, and your light fades low,
you need friends like Bruce, Elsa, and Tucker to know!

The Glow-Worm Gala Quest

It was the night before the big Glow-Worm Gala in Ripple Bay, and Gloria the glow-worm was ready to shine as the Queen of the festival. She'd been dreaming about it for weeks. Her friends had gathered with her for a little picnic under the stars: Bruce the wild flying fox, Elsa the wise echidna, and Tucker the jokester tree frog.

"Tomorrow's gonna be amazing!" cheered Elsa, munching on a leaf. Bruce, always bold, swooped down in a loop-de-loop, grinning, "This will be the best gala yet!"

But as the night darkened, Elsa noticed something odd. Gloria's glow... it was fading. She kept quiet at first, but soon everyone could see it: Gloria's light was dimming.

"I've lost my glow!" Gloria gasped, trembling. "I can't be the Queen without my light!"

Her friends jumped to action, ready to help Gloria find her glow again. They had all night and part of the morning before the festival began, so they sprang into action with plenty of crazy ideas.

The Glow-with-Nature Meditation

Elsa, certain that glowing was all about feeling at peace, led a “Glow-with-Nature” meditation. “Sit still, breathe in the glow!” she instructed.

Bruce tried to relax but kept dozing off and accidentally swooped down onto Tucker’s head. Tucker couldn’t stop fidgeting, and when Elsa began a calming “hummm” sound, he burst into giggles. Bruce mistook the hum for a mosquito and swatted at the air!

In the end, Gloria’s glow hadn’t returned, but they were all laughing so hard they practically glowed with joy.

The Glow-Worm Dance-Off

Tucker had another idea. “What we need is a dance-off!” he announced, hopping in place. Tucker started a wild, hopping routine, but landed in a puddle, splashing everyone. Elsa rolled into a ball, bumping her way around, her spikes getting tangled in grass. Bruce tried a dizzying loop in the air but ended up upside down on a branch.

They weren’t exactly graceful, but the dance-off was hilarious! Gloria was laughing, but still, no glow.

The Glow Detective Mission

Bruce, donning a tiny detective hat made of a leaf, declared, “It’s time for the Glow Detective Mission!” Tucker grabbed a magnifying leaf, and Elsa rolled into “spy mode” to sneak around.

They crept through thorny bushes (where Elsa got stuck), inspected glow-worm “footprints” (which turned out to be Bruce’s own shadow), and Tucker examined his reflection in a puddle. Though they didn’t find any clues, the laughter and silliness made Gloria’s dim glow flicker a bit brighter.

The Glow Serum Experiment

Tucker had a “brilliant” idea. “We’ll make a Glow Serum!” They gathered shiny leaves, flower petals, and dewdrops. Elsa crushed the petals, covering everyone in pink dust. Bruce spun around with a twig to mix it. When they tried to apply it, Gloria turned bright green! They all laughed so hard, Gloria’s light began to flicker a little more.

The Glow-a-Rama Talent Show

Morning arrived, and Tucker came up with one last idea. “Glow-a-Rama Talent Show!” Each friend showcased their “glow-themed” talent. Tucker did a “Glow-Hop” dance and got his feet tangled in leaves. Elsa rolled in a zigzag pattern, ending up covered in berry juice. Bruce created “Glow Patterns” in the air but got dizzy and crashed into a bush.

Gloria laughed so much, her light glowed stronger than ever.

The Glow Float Parade

As the festival began, the organizer decided Gloria’s friends would be her “Glow-Worm Parade Float.” Tucker was the “engine,” Elsa the “decoration,” and Bruce the “spotlight,” holding a glow stick in his wing. They stumbled along, Tucker hopping in all directions, Elsa poking holes with her spikes, and Bruce’s glow stick kept falling. Gloria laughed so much, her light glowed stronger than ever.

Final Effort: The Grand Glow Flight

Just as the gala was about to begin, Bruce had a bold idea. “Gloria, we’ll get you a bird’s-eye view of Ripple Bay! Nothing like a little fresh air up high to spark your glow!” He wrapped his wings gently around her, lifting her into the sky.

They soared high above the village, the wind rushing by, stars twinkling. “You’re doing it, Gloria!” Bruce cheered, flapping with all his might. As they dipped down, Gloria’s laughter grew, and suddenly—a burst of light! Gloria’s glow was back in full, brighter than ever!

They glided down, where Tucker and Elsa were cheering wildly. Gloria’s glow, brighter and bolder than before, lit up the entire festival. She was the Queen of the Glow-Worm Gala, thanks to her amazing friends and all their silly, loving efforts.

Ripple Bay would never forget the funniest, most heart-warming Glow-Worm Gala ever, and Gloria knew that her friends’ love was the brightest glow of all.

Gloria the glow-worm lost her bright light,
“Oh no!” she cried, “I won’t glow tonight!”
But Tucker the tree frog leapt in with glee,
“Don’t worry, Gloria, just hop after me!”

Elsa the echidna rolled down the hill,
Spiky and sticky with a tumble and thrill,
Bruce the Fox t flew, upside-down in the air,
“Follow my lead, I’ll take you there!”

They searched the sand dunes, the pond, and the rocks,
Through giggles and tangles and some lost
socks,
But when they all laughed, oh what a show,
Gloria shined with a warm, happy glow!

So if ever you’re lost and feeling quite low,
Just find your friends—they’ll make you glow!
